To Whom It May Concern:

The school assembly that Sal and Debbie did at our school was very significant for many of our students. Not only were Sal and Debbie entertaining and engaging for students, they were also effective in getting their message across. They spoke about the importance of making good choices and emphasized to our students that the choices they make today will influence the rest of their lives. Drug abuse and premarital sex were topics that really hit home for many of our students.

Sal and Debbie's personal experiences provided vivid and powerful illustrations of the effects that poor choices can make on one's life. They were very frank and open about their past which made the topic of choices relevant and helped our students to relate to the message of choices. It took a great deal of courage for Sal and Debbie to share their lives with our student body, but it was definitely a benefit to our students for them to do so.

At the end of the assembly many students were in tears, and I could tell that they realized the importance of their choices. Several faculty members were in tears also. I heard several teachers making comments such as, "This is exactly the kind of thing that students need to hear," and, "most of these kids are not getting this at home." I would definitely recommend Sal and Debbie to any middle school.
